ANOTHER CONSOLIDATION MEETING

Big Turn-out in Valley View Tract Almost Unanimous

There was another rousing meeting of the Improvement Society Thursday evening last week when a special call brought out a large attendance at the little church in the Vineyard tract. The building was not large enough to accommodate half of the people present and adjournment was made to the outside where although a large portion of the audience had to stand up they remained until the last word had been said.

When the subject was first broached I was opposed to merging with Glendale. Los Angeles was my haven. Then its several bond issues frightened me, causing me to fear a tremendous increase in taxes, broken promises in regard to police and fire protection, lighting rates, and a uniform and improved water system."

The payment of $15 for electric light connection, and acquaintance with the facts of Glendale's electric light system, made a consolidationist of him. He sums up the advantages of consolidation as follows:

"We shall have free electric light connections; that is $15 saved. We will no road tax to pay. Our streets will be lighted. It may be we will save another $15 for water connections. Our streets, paved under a miserable cheap contract system, are almost in ruins. Consolidation means that they will be attended to and kept in repair."

Mr. Snively expressed his regret at not being able to be present and take part in the campaign for consolidation, on account of being compelled to leave for the East.

After brief talks from a few other speakers—especially all favoring consolidation, the meeting adjourned, after notice being given of the regular meeting to be held Thursday evening this week at K. of P. hall.

The committee having the consolidation campaign in charge has not given out any definite plan as to the scope of the territory that it is thought should be consolidated with Glendale, but there is a strong sentiment among many of the consolidation proponents in favor of making the mountains above Casa Verdugo the north boundary line, extending eastward as far as the top of the ridge dividing Glendale and Eagle Rock and south to the S. P. track.

How far west it may be advisable to go is a matter for adjustment, but of course for at least considerable distance the San Fernando road would be the natural boundary. As time passes and the matter is discussed more and more, the objections to the project seem to become daily weaker. The last legislature changed the law for the benefit particularly of that great annexer, Los Angeles, and at present it requires a bare majority of votes to annex, not two-thirds as heretofore. This means a majority within the proposed territory to be consolidated, as well as a majority in the limits of the existing municipality.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.

The annual picnic of the Sunday schools of the valley takes place next Thursday when the Pacific Electric will run special cars to Long Beach and return. It is expected that several hundred people will take advantage of the occasion to spend a day at the seashore. Members of the schools have tickets for sale and a prize goes to the school selling the largest number.

GAS COMPANY'S WORK ABOUT COMPLETED FOR THE PRESENT.

It is understood that the sum of money set aside by the Domestic Gas Co. for Glendale, Tropicana and vicinity, more than usually expensive. Mr. Griswold, being called upon, spoke in regard to the water supply. He said that one of the advantages of consolidation would be from the fact that a city of the fifth class has a right to fix rates for water companies, a right not possessed by the city of the sixth class.

As evidence that the leaven of consolidation is working in the minds of those originally opposed to the movement, the chairman had read a letter from Mr. C. E. Snively, of 1434 Vine

THE CHURCHES

THE NEW BIRTH.

Service will be conducted on Sunday morning, July 31, at the Practical Christianity Center, 432 West Fourth street, at 11 o'clock, by Mr. Walter Raymond, of Los Angeles. Subject of discourse, "The New Birth." All interested are invited.

ST. MARK'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Sunday, July 31. Service 11 a.m. Morning prayer and sermon. Rev. A. G. Le Trew, D. D., will preach. This will be the last service at which Dr. Trew will officiate at Glendale for the present, as the new minister is expected to take charge the following Sunday. Everyone cordially invited. No evening service.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. Orville Coates, pastor. First Baptist church of Phoenix, Ariz., who is now in attendance at Long Beach Baptist assembly, will preach both morning and evening services next Sunday. The church feels very much gratified that they could secure Mr. Coates for our Sunday services and no doubt all who hear him will be well repaid for attending, as he is a preacher of some note in our denomination.

DOG-BONE DOGGEREL. AN APPEAL TO THE POWERS.

They put them in the city pound, and leave them there to howl, they punctuate the silent night with many a strident growl; and when the natives fain would rest, after a day of toll, the dogs begin with hearty zest their dream of peace to spoil. There's one that has a tenor voice that's worn quite thin in spots, and when he turns loose at the moon, why, sweet forgotten lilies of the valley and other gentle things just listen for a moment and then at once take wings. And one, he warbles gently in a buzz, saws monotone which is soothing to the sleepers as a cast-iron megaphone. While another frog-like canine, when he's bone right works, breaks the strum in pieces with a brilliant trill, and then, when he's done, pronounces of old-fashioned board-yard breed, to the tenor plays secundo when they sing their blissful screed; and the air with grief is laden and concealed in many a chunk till the chorus starts to wade in, then it tumbles down ker-plunk. And that chorus—suffering Moses! How can dogs so disagree, for no mortal thing reposes in their fell profligacy. Oh, guardians of the public peace, policemen or trustees, or city clerk or marshal, or whatever else you please, we know that dogs must have their day, the law it runneth thus, but still with emphasis we say, the night belongs to us!

REAL ESTATE SALES REPORTED.

The Tropicana Realty Co. reports the following sales this week: Lot and house on Glendale avenue to Mrs. Allen of Los Angeles for $1300. Three-fourths of an acre to Mr. Cary of Los Angeles in the Huff tract on Tenth street for $1000. Mr. Cary will erect a $1500 home on the property once. Lot on the corner of Sixth and Everett street belonging to F. E. Burt, formerly a dentist of this place, but now of Los Angeles, to Mr. Brundie of Los Angeles for $650 cash. Lot on Louise and Glendale avenue to B. R. Dunigan for $1200 cash. The new owner will erect a $1200 home on the property at once.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The executive board held a meeting on Friday last at which matters of interest to the club were discussed and arrangements made for the work of the coming year. New work was laid out and new committees planned for the year under the direction of the president, Mrs. Gridley, promises to be the most successful in the history of the club. It is the president's ambition to see the membership of the club greatly increased and all plans are made with that object in view.

The material for the new year book is about ready and will be in the hands of the printer in a few days.

MAYOR ALEXANDER IN GLENDALE

Wednesday, July 20, the sanitarian received as a guest one of our chief local celebrities, Mayor George Alexander of Los Angeles. Mayor Alexander returned to the city on Tuesday of this week feeling greatly rested and improved. During his stay at the sanitarian he dined in the public dining room, followed the prescribed course of baths and treatment for the cure and behaved quite as the other patients who were there for recuperation. The greater part of his time was spent under the pleasant shade of the catalpa trees which grace the sanitarian lawn.

ACCIDENT TO MR. RAY GOODE.

Last Sunday as Mr. Ray E. Goode swung off an electric car at Eagle Rock he hit his head against a pole by the side of the track and was knocked senseless. He was brought to his home and cared for and has nearly recovered from the effects of the accident.

FROM THE IMPERIAL COUNTRY.

Mr. J. W. Imler called at the NEWS office last Saturday. Mr. Imler is now extensively engaged in ranching in the Imperial valley where among other crops he has 100 acres of cotton planted. He has come to his Tropicana home to wait for the hot season in Imperial to pass, as aside from one or two irrigations the cotton will require no further attention until ready to pick. He reports the Imperial country forging ahead as rapidly as ever and the people enjoying a general prosperity. The acreage in melons was not as large there as in some previous years, but the returns were very satisfactory.

COMMENDED FOR EFFICIENCY.

The taxes collected and accounted for during the years 1909-10 amounted to $7,269,076.69. To handle this amount of money, to account for it and balance the books exactly each year, requires accuracy, experience and efficiency.

Col. W. O. Welch has served as county tax collector during the past eight years, has improved and systematized the methods to such an extent that each grand jury for those eight years has commended him for efficiency.

If you approve of keeping honest and capable men in office, vote at the primaries for W. O. Welch for county tax collector.

GLENDALE, CAL., JULY 29, 1910

It is to be hoped that our neighbors across the river in the Hollywood section, will have the good taste to retire Supervisor Eldridge to private life at the coming election. He is opposed by a very strong man, Sidney A. Butler, and the indications are that the present supervisor's career of usefulness to Eldridge in the services of the county is nearly an end.

In New York City an ordinance has become effective prohibiting the use of "smoking" automobiles. The ordinance is the result of a petition signed by a hundred doctors declaring the smoke from motor cars and taxicabs to be "dangerous to health." Many arrests of chauffeurs marked the first day that the law went into effect. It is claimed that there is no necessity for the smoke when good oil is used and the chauffeurs exercise proper care.

The time for registration for the primary election of August 16th has now passed. According to law no one who has failed when registering to declare his party affiliation, can participate in the primary. Many voters, misunderstanding the purpose of this requirement, have refused to name the party they wished to affiliate with and will therefore have no voice in making up the tickets. The declaration in regard to party has nothing to do with the general election.

Somebody is lying, not to use a shorter and uglier word. The opponents of Stanton, both Lincoln-Roosevelters and the supporters of Anderson in the contest for governor, are asserting that Stanton is supported by only 19 papers in the state. The Los Angeles Graphic on the other hand, having taken a poll of the editors' credits, Stanton with 33 newspaper supporters, all south of Tehachapi, while Johnson in the same section has the support of 25.

The Wilmington Journal emits a wail and dwells at great length editorially upon the fact that just one year has elapsed since that town became a part of Los Angeles, and not one of the glittering promises made to her have been fulfilled! It speaks of scores of committees sent to present their demands to the city council, 21 miles away, and calls upon the people to resume the management of their own affairs by withdrawing from the larger city and becoming a municipal part of the sixth class!

The voters of Glendale and vicinity should take advantage of the opportunity offered them tonight to hear the Hon. P. A. Stanton at K. of P. hall. The voter who tries his best to inform himself well and cast an intelligent vote, is handicapped at best by human limitations, but the effort to become acquainted with public men and measures, is one that should be seriously made by every citizen intending to perform his duty at the polls.

Mr. Joseph Scott, president of the Los Angeles board of education recently objected to the board passing a vote of thanks to some ladies of a Parent-Teacher association who had presented one of the public schools with a piano. Mr. Scott is by this evidence a gentleman of fine discernment and sterling common sense. He said several things that were very much to the point when the matter came before the board and there is one Parent-Teacher association in Los Angeles with which Mr. Scott is no doubt quite unpopular. We agree with Mr. Scott that there are numerous things which promise to be much more useful in a public school than a "tinkling piano," only we wonder that the gentleman had the courage to say so in these perilous days of the recall.

BACK TO THE FARM.

We publish this week the first installment of a series of articles by C. V. Gregory, upon modern farm life and its possibilities, which we commend to our readers, particularly to young men who are still undecided as to the field of usefulness to which they shall devote their energies. Present day conditions on the farms are vastly different from what they were a generation ago and are changing for the better all the time. As Mr. Gregory states in one of these articles "The opportunities of the farm are not limited in size or extent" and it will pay well for the young men to look with more favor upon farm life than they have been doing of late years when they have too commonly yielded to the call of the city or to the attractiveness of those fields which demand what is popularly supposed to be the higher education."

The agitation of the question of public parks for Glendale, has recently been allowed to subside, but only for a little while, it is to be hoped. That public spirited citizens desiring to enshrine himself in the hearts of his townsmen by donating an acre (or many of them) for this worthy object, has not yet materialized, but he certainly must exist. It is in the nature of things impossible that the need should long exist and the man (or woman) fail to meet it. To believe that some day soon or late, preferably soon, this to-be-nost-honored personage will appear, is simply to accept a well-established law in nature. No doubt he is at present pondering on the subject; lying awake nights, maybe, trying to stifle his conscience in an effort to smother his generous impulse which notwithstanding his efforts, will not down. Perhaps the narrow confines of the city do not encompass him, but he has his habitat in the circumjacent territory and he is sternly telling his conscience that he is not called upon to do anything in particular for Glendale! But in that event, mark how fate will eucue him; the microbe of consolidation is in the air and has already marked him for its own. Soon he will be one of us, a very fellow citizen in truth, sharing with the best of us equal rights of being taxed and feeling so gratified for the high privilege that he will no longer struggle against fate, but be willing to give to the community a generous portion of that which he cannot take with him when he is translated to a better country, and can confer upon the present and future generations a blessing that shall last through the year while the fame of it shall precede and welcome him at the Gates of the Blessed! Selah!

We find the following in the Artesia News, and it contains so much of truth that we take pleasure in reproducing it. It might have been made stronger, however, had the editor of the News been aware of the fact, that the "contributing editor" of the Outlook, is, unless he has recently changed his spots, a consistent and persistent democrat in politics. And when a member of the democratic party cuddles up to insurgent republicans, he can scarcely be credited with unselfish patriotism in the act:

The following assurance from the Pacific Outlook, the official organ of the Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican League, must be very consoling to the staunch old republican voters of this part of the state. It says:

"It is a fact that may as well be admitted one time as another that while the Lincoln-Roosevelt crowd are republican on national issues, locally they are disposed to be non-partisan and independent. In city and county affairs most of them will vote for the best man irrespective of party, and they do not care who knows it. If it is necessary to combine with the Democrats to get the best man, they are ready to do it."

"When are they ready to do it?

Before the primaries, or after them?

Everyone knows the answer. They will be willing to combine with the Democrats AFTER the primaries if their candidate is not nominated. In other words, the League members will be registered as Republicans; will vote the Republican ticket at the primaries, but will support Democratic nominees at the election. And this "purifying" politics. Oh, well."

THE DULL SEASON?

About this time of year we hear the old stereotyped expressions about "times being dull," "everybody at the seashore," etc., just as if the whole fabric of the business world was becoming moth-eaten or rusty from disuse, according to the material composing it. A certain class of business men conclude that when summer time comes they ought to cease their efforts to attract the attention of the public by advertising, and let things drift. And generally they do drift more or less as far as their particular business is concerned, for their patrons drift off to the bargain counters of the big establishments that never acknowledge a "dull season," nor cease to exert themselves to attract public attention. It is true that we are now in the midst of summer, but we fail to notice that people have ceased from the old-time occupations of eating, drinking, wearing clothes and making and using a thousand and one things which quite probably they do not need, but still insist upon having. There is a rush to the seashore, of course, but the business man who feels that he can afford to spend a short time by the "shores of the sounding sea," does not often go out of business to indulge himself in the change. Indeed, the rush to the seashore produces business. Factories do not close down when the warm weather sets in. It is harvest time with the farmer and the season of plenty with him; in Southern California he is marketing the products of orchard and field, adding to his credit at the bank and spending money liberally. Dull times? There is nothing dull about the present season in this section of California, except the man who talks about dullness and misses the opportunities he encounters because it is easier to drift than to do when the mercury registers blood heat!

BURDETTE FAVERS STANTON.

Bob Burdette says everything so well when he speaks upon any living subject that we give space to the following output of his in regard to the governorship, and it is in accord with our own sentiments upon the subject: "If I were out gunning for Presbyterians I wouldn't follow the trail of the American Atheistic Association, and if I were Roosevelting for big wealthy malefactor game, I wouldn't stalk the water tanks and lie in wait for the ragged hobos who came in to jump freight trains. And, similarly when I want to get a Republican governor, I don't beat the coverts on old Grove Johnson's ranch.

"What makes a successful fisherman is not so much the graceful art of making a record cast—everybody knows the luck of a boy with a Jimmick hook and an alder pole. It's in knowing where to fish—it's in fishing where the kind of fish you want are.

After you've caught one catfish, you know there is no earthly use of shing in that hole for trout.

"Now, there have been too many catfish caught in Johnson Creek to justify the patientest angler in casting any kind of a fly in its sluggish eddies with any hope of a rise from a thoroughbred Republican mountain trout. The banks of that creek are too slippery. The bottom is rocky. The water is too yellow. Man, you might just possibly might find a Republican trout in that sort of a stream, one that has strayed away from the old Republican hatchery. But it's an awful chance. And it's mighty liable to have contracted some catfish habits. And it's pretty sure to be unhealthy.

"A Republican candidate from the house of Johnson lacks the clean strain of thoroughbred stock. The pedigree doesn't run back to a Lincoln sire. The motto on the escutcheon is too hyphenated. The bend sinister indicates illegitimacy of descent. The great names laid on the shield is false heraldry—it's metal on metal—gold upon brass.

"I like Philip Stanton because he comes from the Republican end of the state. No matter who is nominated for governor on the Republican ticket, the South will have to elect him. We elected a Northerner from Berkeley. Then we elected one away up in the northern country. Now let's have one from our Republican ranch. We are glad to furnish all the Republican votes most of the time; but we like to choose the man to vote for, some of the time. And this is one of the times. We have elected two 'outlanders' in succession. Now let's elect one of our neighbors—one of the folk here at home. Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn." We've thrashed out the harvest through two good long hot campaigns. It's about time for us to rest the yoke a minute on our galled shoulders, and reach down for a good big mouthful of barley hay before it's clean threshed out. Let Johnson have the straw.

"I am a supporter of Philip A. Stanton because he doesn't have to explain his political origin. He doesn't wear a man's name on his sleeve and knife him in the back. He is our neighbor. We know him in politics, business and social life. We have seen his clear judgment, his quick decision, his prompt and Rooseveltian action, in time of sudden and perilous emergency. We know his broad-minded Americanism. We have seen his high patriotism put to test of fire and come out gold.

"He doesn't pose as a Lincoln-Republican. But there is still young in our memories a time when the Roosevelt policies in California were in imminent peril. When there was instant and pressing need of a full-grown man to stand between those policies and the hysteria of a city mad with Japanophily, aggravated by the wild demagoguery of the patriarchal head of the Johnson family, madness which ever threatened war between the United States and a nation with which it was then at peace. And Philip A. Stanton was the man for the hour. The speaker of the California house of representatives stood for the Roosevelt policies, for one moment almost single-handed, and stood for them with the tenacity and courage and strength of Roosevelt himself.

"Therefore I support him as the great Roosevelt Republican. And Roosevelt's friends have short and ungrateful memories if they propose to come into this state and forget the services Stanton rendered the great president.

"Now, we don't know what Stanton's opponents in the contest for the gubernatorial nomination would have done if they had been in his place. But we do know what Philip A. Stanton did do. And the stand that he made, and the service that he rendered to his own state and to the United States at that time, makes him look mighty good to me. I know of no reason why I should forget his services and support a man from Sacramento. I'm a Roosevelt Republican myself; therefore I support Philip A. Stanton. And I'm a Lincoln Republican, too. I carried a torch in the Wide-Awake ranks in 1860, shouting all the louder because I could not vote, when the candidates of the Republican party were Lincoln and Hamlin. Then when President Lincoln called for volunteers, I enlisted and served through the war under the greatest of presidents. Then I began to vote for his Republican successors, and have kept it up. I reckon I'm a Lincoln Republican. And I'm sure there is not a man in California who thinks Theodore Roosevelt is as great a man as I do. I wonder sometimes if any man can be so great as I consider Colonel Roosevelt. So I reckon I'm a Lincoln-Roosevelt Republican, all right. And that's why I support Philip Stanton as our candidate for governor."

The following we find in the Los Angeles Sunday Herald from the pen of a fellow townsmen:

A Leaf of Life.

Holding within itself the potency of all that is, a spark from the heights and depths of infinite life kisses an atom of earth—thrilling it with a measure of its own power and vivifying it with its own magic unfoldment.

United thus these two reach out for more, spurred on by love's desire to build a form divine—anthing to this instant call atom to atom, links and molecules merge in cells.

Faintly at first the babe begins to know—content indeed if but its mouth be filled—till soon its ear is charmed by the mother's lullaby and all that glistens attracts its eye—and now ere weal or woe it reaches forth to grasp all things it seeks to know—and seeking stimulates the inborn soul to grow and clothe itself with larger earthly form. And soon the child runs forth among grass and flowers, listening to hum of bee and wild bird's song, while sunlit winds entangle clustering curls and kiss its cheeks to a glow.

Led by life's creative hand, the spirit grows apace, and brain responds to thoughts that crowd its myriad cells. And days of school and days of play fill the conscious life till love's awakening comes. This jeweled star of life's bright crown—the prize of youth and age, lights eye and face and quickens step and rounds each form with grace.

It takes the halves of human life and weaves them into one—one in thought, desire and need and one in life's intent, and now our youth and maid, imbued with this great joy, go forth adown the years, seeking the future's store—leaving footprints along the paths of time that lead to many a door where stricken ones received their mead of sympathy and love. While here and there along the path come tiny lives from out the starry depths to fill their hearts with love's fuller measure.

And now, like autumnal leaves flooded in the glory of the setting sun, choice friends well earned by love's devotion, enrobe their ripening souls with kindly thoughts and deeds—sure passport to celestial realms, where thrills that wondrous joy that passes mortal ken and floodeth full each rounded life that strove to do its best.

A TRIP TO THE OIL FIELDS.

Notes on Development of the Past Three Years.

(For the NEWS)

It is noteworthy that progress has marked every district in California. Boarding the train last Friday morning and going north over the Tehachapi we found that not only had Glendale surprised the most progressive prophets as to advancement, but that all along the line men and money had been most energetically at work developing the resources of the country. In Tulare county, that newly organized and improved district of Corcoran where only a few years ago existed a large swamp in wet weather, and in dry years dry lake, now transformed and beaming with the prosperous and progressive city of Corcoran surrounded by ranches well stocked for dairying and large tracts covered with alfalfa and grain. On a little farther to the east we are able to discern the derricks of the Kern river oil fields, rising like sentinels on the desert, and pointing out the wealth hidden there. This country only a few years ago was hardly considered profitable for dry farming. A little farther north we see large newly turned over fields, and as we get nearer see acres and acres planted to eucalyptus trees looking thrifty and growing. It is hard to imagine how this long stretch of level land is going to look and be when in three years we go through several hundred acres of tall timber and enjoy the shade and other changes it will make; but on we go to Porterville. We have not been here for some ten years, and the improvements are fully in keeping with what we found along the road. Then it was a small town surrounded by grain fields, houses poorly kept and out of date, but today you see hundreds of acres in citrus fruits, and fine new modern homes, yards planted grass and lawns looking well-kept, streets graded and shade trees on every side, making the greeting more that of an eastern town instead of a desert farming district, as it appeared to me ten years ago. From here we push on to Hanford; here is a progressive city in a well-watered district, and they have not failed to advertise it as such in Kings county, for in the lobby of the Artesian hotel which extends to the dome in the top, they have a fine fountain of spouting water to the very top and throwing a constant rain down to the pool below. In this pool is kept a school of turtles, and they have been trained until they come on call and rest on the margin of the basin, stretching out their heads and look inquiringly into your face from their slits of eyes, until you wonder what they want; and I say to the landlady, "what are they looking for?" "Oh, only for me, and some feed. I feed them daily, and they come when I call. They all know me and do not fail to come when I call, but you let any one else come near, and down they dive to the bottom of the pool." But we do not stop here. There comes now a rumor that the big trees are in danger near here, and all the fire departments of Porterville, Hanford, Goshen and Coalinga, are needed to fight the fires, and they hurry off, to protect the sequoia forest, while we hurry on to the most famous oil district in this country or any other. Arriving at Coalinga one is at once enthused by the bustle and the hundreds of oil derricks in the valley and the 360 wells pumping from 3000 to 10,000 barrels daily. We notice the long rows of wells on or near the section lines, and we ask why are they thus drilled? "Oh, that is easy, they want to be as near to the other fellow's land as possible, and hence drill near to their own line so as to draw oil from the other side—we all want all we have and some of the other fellows, if we can get it legally, and if not—why then we must scheme."

The large companies, of course, have secured all the land they can protect and hold, whether they intend to improve it or not, as their aim is to keep others out and obstruct competition, hence the recent conservation acts passed by the government holding out mineral lands not actually improved or deeded to the owners, thus saving some land for future generations, and as we think very wisely, not allowing all these corporations to hold and control the entire wealth of such desirable locations to produce as much or as little as they may seem to think is to their interest.

A man has not to be long in Coalinga city to find it is new, everything in the transitory stage, but will soon be a large commercial field and oil center.

We also see that it takes men of nerve and decision to make a success of an oil field. Here we find many tried and gave up and frequently just on the point of brilliant success. It, however, is true that the most trying time is over, for now in this section are proven oil fields, both by the number of wells and the many carefully observed oil formations reported by the U. S. government, so that it by no means requires the nerve now that it did ten years ago to go after the oil in a proven field, for now we know the oil is here, the only thing is just where we shall find the most productive leads. This can only be told by putting down a hole. In one well on section six, they put down a well, found good oil and determined to put on a pump; one of the directors was not satisfied with the flow and said "Surely here we ought to get twice this amount of oil," so ordered the pump out and to drill farther. This was done, and the well pumped over 800 barrels a day. Still not satisfied it was taken up and again sunk deeper with the result of a gusher. This is only one case, but they are numbered by the dozen in Coalinga, where the first shallow wells were taken up and deep wells put down with more than double the production, but in an unproven field it took such men as Canfield, Doheny, Wright, Stewart, and the Wallaces to hold on under the most discouraging conditions, and give to us the Kern river and Coalinga oil fields. These men have been amply paid, and are today multimillionaires. These men say to us there is no such thing as fail in the Coalinga oil field, only do not give up. You are sure to win.

Another observation I made in the oil fields, no discontented, unhappy countenances. All seemed beaming with push and contentment. Every one confident. I don't know when I have seen such a satisfied and enthusiastic people. These large manipulators also understand the human nature, and the day is past when you can work men for beasts. They must be recognized as men, and to get the most out of men you must cultivate the whole man. "All work and no play" is an old adage that it makes Jack a dull boy. Hence the American and the Associated companies have placed reading rooms and periodicals at the disposal of the laborers, and furnished halls for amusement and dancing, so these vigorous men can pass a pleasant evening right in the grounds and be ready for the work of the next day.

There are many new companies starting there, some of the new ones have sold out before even getting down to oil, the San Diego for one, and many others have offers, but many prefer to develop their own holdings and see the oil, which is sure to bring them fabulous returns, only two things necessary, time and courage, with the means to go after the oil, but the means is of secondary consideration, for if you don't, some one else is only waiting for the chance.

One company that has named one of their wells "the Amy" has erected a large and modern two-story block in the city of Coalinga from the profits of the well, naming the block after the well that financed it. Improvements are up to date and the young city has every appearance of energetic business management—the oil stratas are now in this district well defined and any one drilling can find records of the oil sands and know just how far he is to go anywhere in this oil field, for the proven oil field is some 25 miles long and 18 to 20 miles wide. On many sections the oil wells are very closely drilled to one another. In other places they are some miles apart, but in either case records are kept of the dip and stratas encountered for the benefit of future drillers.

The different companies are apparently very friendly to one another and help each other when in need, even lend tools and rigs to new developers to assist, and are interested in each new well and its product.

It is said of all the oil districts the Coalinga is the most even in its products and the wells are said to be from lasting oil sands that will continue to be producers. This may be because they have not as yet sounded the extreme depth of the oil strata, for the deeper wells are the stronger. On gas well in the northern end of the oil belt, that portion named Oil City, is supplying the town with an excellent quality of gas for lighting. In another section over west the "Traders" have developed a very fine water well, the water here is fine soft spring water, and the company is doing quite as well in selling this water as have they in pumping any single oil well, for the water in most places in Coalinga is not good for drinking, being filled with mineral deposits that are very dangerous, as for instance arsenic, so that right in the village you will find on the streets large tanks for water, which are filled daily from these wells of good water.

We made up our minds that Coalinga is destined to be the most famous oil producing section of which we have as yet any record.

THE OIL FIELDS

Is the Output Controlled by the Tides?—The Lakeview Gusher

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., July 19.—Is the flow of the great Lakeview gusher of central California controlled by the tides of the Pacific? That is a question that is puzzling engineers and scientists since it was noticed that the volume of oil discharged by this world-famous spouter varied at different times of the day.

Engineers believe they have found a solution of the phenomenon in the fact that the fluctuations in the flow of the great gusher are coincident with the ebb and flow of the tides of the Pacific ocean—that the inky fluid spouts in greater volume at high tide and diminishes considerably at low tide.

If this theory is correct, it strengthens the contention of many scientists that the vast deposits of petroleum underlying California were once great inland seas, and that there still is connection between the Pacific ocean and these subterranean seas of combustible fluid.

Home Course In Domestic Science

XVI.—Treatment of Floors and Windows.

By EDITH G. CHARLTON,
In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa
State College.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press
Association.

After the plan of rooms has been decided upon and the walls have been decorated with colors and materials in accordance with the governing principles of light, harmony and general fitness the next point to consider in house furnishing is the floor. The new house of modern design will probably have floors of hardwood, and some varieties are so beautiful in themselves that the necessary treatment is very simple. A priming or filling coat of shellac to preserve the wood and cover up cracks, followed by one or more coats of wax rubbed down until it has the beautifully smooth, unpolished surface so much liked at the present time, makes the best floor finish. A very good preparation for waxing is made as follows: Melt one pound of wax slowly over hot water. When quite soft remove from fire and beat into it one pint of turpentine. If a soft finish is desired add one cupful of paraffin oil before using. When ready to apply have the wax melted and the floor free from dust. If there are any stains on the floor remove them before applying the wax. A strong solution of oxalic acid will remove black or almost any discoloration from wood, but it will also remove the staining substance, and this must be restored before waxing. When the floor is perfectly clean moisten a piece of flannel with the soft wax and rub the floor all over, using more wax as necessary. Let the wax remain on the floor for an hour or more, then polish with a stiff woolen cloth, piece of old carpet or soft leather or a weighted brush made for the purpose.

Do not use water on waxed or oiled floors unless you wish to remove all the finish and replace it with a new one. The daily care need be nothing more than sweeping with a soft hair brush, then wiping with a dust mop. Once a week all spots should be removed with turpentine and the floor wiped with a cloth saturated with the waxing substance.

An oak stain for pine or whitewood floors may be made as follows: Two cups of boiled oil, one and one-half cups of turpentine, three tablespoonsfuls of raw umber, three tablespoonsfuls of whiting. Mix very thoroughly. A good cherry stain is made of the same ingredients, substituting burnt sienna for the raw umber and using a little less whiting. When floors have been given one or two coats of stain they may be waxed according to the directions given above.

Carpets and Rugs.

Old floors can be painted and then oiled, or they may be treated with any desired floor preparations that are on the market. The hardwood or painted floor is much preferable to any carpet, though to make the furnishing of a room complete some covering is necessary. This would better be one good sized rug or several smaller ones, depending on the size and character of the room. The color of the rugs should harmonize with the color used on the wall or in draperies, but it should be considerably stronger in tone than either or both the others.

One large rug is more satisfactory for a dining room than several small ones, and the room which has walls decorated with horizontal lines, as it may be to give the effect of lowering the ceiling, should have a single rug on the floor; otherwise such a room will have a patchy appearance. Most people have learned that for sanitary reasons the floor covering, whatever it may be, should not extend from wall to wall nor be securely tacked down, to be removed only once a year or less frequently. Yet there are some housekeepers who cling to the old fashioned carpet without realizing the dangers there may be from germs thriving in the accumulated dust. The artistic house should be healthful also, and this will be largely accomplished when there is just a little opportunity as possible for germs to develop in it. Sunlight, fresh air and freedom from dust give the best assurance that disease germs are not hiding in our homes, while thick carpets, wool draperies and heavily curtained windows are likely breeding places for them.

Nowadays these things are not considered either artistic or beautiful.

Drapery and Window Curtains. Femininity loves soft draperies much more than the average man dislikes them, so as long as woman is the presiding genius in the home she will have them at windows and doors. Certainly they do add the finishing touch to a home, the final touch without which a room never seems quite complete, no matter how well chosen are its appointments. But a word of caution is necessary in regard to draperies both for artistic and sanitary reasons. Window curtains should not be so heavy or numerous that they shut out air and sunlight. Wool draperies and portieres should be avoided in rooms that are to be much used, because wool fabrics catch and hold dust more than any other material. For living rooms and dining room silk or linen draperies are the best when expense need not be figured too closely, but there is such a big variety of cotton fabrics displaying beauty in both design and coloring that one need not buy the more costly silks unless one prefers them.

In color portieres and draperies should harmonize with both walls and doors and should be a tone midway between the two. The long folds of the straight hanging drapery are much more beautiful than the looped and festooned arrangements which were popular a few years ago and which are still used by some professional upholsterers. Window curtains should come just to the lower edge of the casement and not to the floor or spread out a yard or two on the floor, after the fashion of recent years. A single pair of window curtains made of thin material, either plain or trimmed and hung in long straight lines, with side curtains to match the portieres, is the best trimming for any window from every point of view. If the window is very wide, making more than one pair of curtains necessary, there may be an overdrapery from the top as well as the sides. This should not extend down too far.

In selecting draperies keep two points firmly in mind—first, don't use flowered drapery with a flowered wall and don't buy heavy, unwashable hangings for bedrooms. Such materials are entirely out of harmony with the whole idea of bedroom simplicity. For a flowered or much figured wall no curtains are prettier than plain white muslin or net made with wide hem or finished with a ruffle. For a bedroom with plain wall decoration a white curtain with a flowered inner curtain draped at the side of the window is very effective.

Furniture and Where to Put It.

One important rule to observe in buying furniture for any part of the house is that it be of good quality, built on simple lines and suitable for the service it is intended to give. The living room should have comfortable, substantial furniture—not too much of it, yet enough to meet the requirements of the family. The table should be large enough and strong enough to support the weight of the books, magazines and other articles which may be brought to it. The frail table, which looks as if it might go to pieces if subjected to greater weight than that of a vase of flowers or a book, may be permissible in the reception room, but is entirely out of place in the living room, where the family has its several pleasures and interests. The chairs, too, in this room should be comfortable, strong and sufficiently varied in size and style to suit every one from grandfather to the little child. Furniture for the living room, especially the chairs, should not be cumbersome. There can be strength without unnecessary weight, such as is often found in the so called "mission" furniture. The lines and general composition of this kind of furniture are good, and the popularity of the style has done much to revive simplicity in furnishing, but occasionally we find pieces that are unwieldy and awkward to move.

In the dining room the same rules should be followed; also adding to that in this room the furniture should be limited to that required for serving and partaking of meals. A dining table, six or eight chairs, a sideboard or buffet and a serving table are really all the pieces necessary in the room, and unless there is an unusual amount of space to spare no more should be added. If possible the furniture in the dining room should be of one style and one finish. Odd pieces spoil the attractiveness of the room. It is a good idea when practicable to have the woodwork in the dining room and its furniture match. For instance, a room finished in old English oak and this, with dull yellow or pomegranate wall decoration, is most effective in a north room. Do not crowd any room with superfluous furniture. There should be enough chairs, sufficient tables and one or more comfortable couches, but exaggerated creations in the way of seats, centerpieces and whatnots are not in good taste.

The bedroom furniture should be chosen with an eye to fitness and comfort rather than fashion. A plain brass or enameled iron bedstead, dressing table or bureau, small table, one or two chairs, a washstand and a couch are ample for any room the prime use of which is rest and sleep. I would include a couch—a simple homemade affair will fill every requirement—in every bedroom. It tempts one for the ten minute nap during the day which might never be thought of were there only a trim white bed in the room, and this little rest means added years to one's life.

The bed is the principal furniture in the sleeping room and should represent the largest amount of money. Have homemade dressers and tables if you must do without every luxury if need be, but have a good bed.

"BACK TO THE FARM"

I.—The Growth of the Cities and the Increased Cost of Living.

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Live Stock
Farming," "Making Money on the Farm," "Home Course in Modern Agriculture," Etc.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press
Association.

THE high cost of living, or the "cost of high living," as James J. Hill puts it, is a subject which just now is engrossing the attention of the entire nation. The cost of the necessities of life has been steadily increasing since 1896. The symptoms have been viewed with increasing alarm by nearly all classes. Within the last year the matter has reached an acute stage. The average increase in the cost of necessities from Jan. 1, 1896, to Jan. 1, 1910, was 11.7 per cent. The increase over July 1, 1896, was 61 per cent.

The wage and salary earners in the cities have seen the "bread line" gradually drawing closer. The margin between income and expenses, narrow at best, has shrunk to the vanishing point. All this while newspapers have been shouting prosperity, forgetful of the old maxim that "the real prosperity of a nation is the citizen's margin of saving."

Whatever the cause of this increase in the cost of necessities and comforts, there are but two ways in which the citizen as an individual can meet it. The first is to increase his income, and the second is to lower his standard of living. The wage earner, banding together with his fellows in a union, has been able to increase his scale of wages to some extent, though not nearly enough to fill the gap between income and expenses.

USING CORN FOR FUEL IN 1896.

The earner who does not belong to a union has profited to some extent by the general rise in wages, though not so much as the union man.

The salaried man has borne the brunt of the rising prices. He belongs to no union, and his demands for increased pay have brought little response.

All classes that are compelled to work for a living have had to turn to the other alternative in a greater or less degree. They have been forced to lower their standard of living. The first item to be attacked is the food supply. Russell Sage once said, "As the cost of living increases the use of meat decreases, the proportion of dark rooms increases and child labor becomes plentiful." Less meat means poorer nourishment, less resistance to disease and a higher death rate. Other foods of cheaper quality are used. Oleomargarine takes the place of butter. Cold storage eggs are a luxury and fresh eggs unknown, and cheaper brands of canned goods are used.

Aside from food, the big item of expense in the city is rent. In order to keep up with the increased cost of things property owners have been forced to raise rents. The frenzied crowding of the people to the cities has enabled landlords to make these increased rents effective. The result is that a house with a porch and a bit of lawn has become a luxury, and more and more the middle classes, the classes on whom prosperity should react most favorably, have been forced into flats and apartment houses. The poorer classes have moved into tenements. The high cost of room has made crowding inevitable. Human beings have been forced to herd together like cattle or worse. The modern dairy barn is a palace beside some of the tenements that pass muster as human habitations.

Many causes have been advanced by economists and others to account for the rise in prices. Many blame the tariff, but that will not explain why prices are rising nearly as rapidly in England as in the United States. The economist's favorite reason is in the increase in the supply of gold. Money is becoming cheaper, he says, and therefore it takes more of it to buy a given amount of any commodity. This explanation sounds very plausible, but it does not explain the fact that prices have at other times gone down in the face of increased gold production. The gold supply is unquestionably a factor influencing rising prices. That it is the fundamental factor may well be doubted.

Other writers try to lay the whole trouble to the growing extravagance of the American people and to the increased standard of living. It is true that at the present time we regard as necessities what yesterday were luxuries. This increase in the standard of

Why Philip A. Stanton

Should Be Our Governor

Southern California Has Much to Gain by Electing the Man Who Has Done Much for Southern California.

WHY should Philip A. Stanton be the next Governor of California?

Because the people of Southern California are deeply interested in having a governor.

Because Philip A. Stanton is the only Southern California man who seeks nomination at the primary election on August 16.

Because there will arise many occasions during the next four years when the people of the southern countries will need to have a firm and true friend in Sacramento, whose interests are identical with theirs; who knows their needs, and who has had such experience in affairs of state as will enable him to gain their ends.

TROPICO RESIDENTS ROUSED

The residents of Tropic are sitting around looking wise of a report that was made public this week to the effect that a man of considerable wealth

SHAYER BROS. "A Little Store Well Filled."

"THE MISSION"

Lunch Room and Ice Cream Parlor, Confectionery and Bakery Goods. San Fernando Road, South of Tropic Avenue.

LOUIS J. HOCQUARD, Prop.

who up to recently for several years was a prominent figure in the building operations of Glendale, has purchased a number of lots on Brand boulevard between Cypress avenue and Eulalia street.

Many rumors are afloat as to his object in purchasing this property, but they are groundless, as far as we know. Some say that it is his intention to buy up this land and transform it into a business instead of a residence center. Others state that in reality it is the Pacific Electric company who is doing the buying with the intention of erecting several large car barns, but there is probably as much truth in that as in the others.

For a long time there has been positively nothing doing in the way of realty sales in this boulevard section, and the fact that several sales have taken place during the past two weeks, along with the other owners in the section being offered large prices for their holdings, seems to sustain the belief that in the near future there will be "big things" doing in this locality.

TROPICO PRESBYTERIAN ITEMS.

Rev. Henderson C. Shoemaker, who has been the pastor of the Presbyterian church at this place for the past two years, has been called to fill a vacancy at the Knox Presbyterian church in Los Angeles, which is situated on 30th street between Main and Grand avenue. He will preach his last sermon at this place about the first Sunday in next month. A successor to Mr. Shoemaker for this place has not as yet been chosen.

W. S. Young, moderator of the Presbytery of Los Angeles, and synod of California will deliver the morning discourse at this church next Sunday morning.

Next Sunday evening there will be a union service held at this church, the home Christian Endeavor and the Methodist Epworth League of this place, taking part. The meeting will be in charge of leader which was previously selected for the Epworth League service.

The Ladies' Aid of this church will give a hot supper in the church parlor this evening. This will be the first time given by these ladies for some time and promises to be up to the standard which has characterized their suppers in the past. Benefit of the Aid.

IMPROVEMENT WORK BEING RUSHED.

There is being not let-up in the improvement work being done on the Richardson tract in the southern part of this place. There seemed to be an endeavor to see how fast the work could be done, everything being in first-class style, and it seems that that spirit is prevailing up to the present minute.

Fifty men and twenty horses are engaged in grading the streets and laying cement. A curbing is being installed along either side of San Fernando road between Central avenue and the railroad and along the west side of the road south as far as Devine's place, a distance of about half a mile. Several of the other streets are also being improved. On Cerritos street, new street running east and west, two homes are being erected by the tract owners for those who have purchased the lots on which they are situated. One more will start north of San Fernando road soon.

Mr. Richardson informs that the good roads improvement work will be along the San Fernando road as far north as this place in about two weeks. At this time the work has come as far north as the Devine place. The contractor who is doing this work has contracted to finish the work as far north as a mile above Burbank, but the good road plans call for the road being finished as far north as Newhall.

G. H. BARAGER

Watson Block
Fourth St. near Glendale Ave.

A Diplomatic Official.

During the reign of Emperor Napoleon III, he and the empress visited Normandy and had arranged to spend couple of days at Evreux. M. Janvier de la Monte, who was the prefect, learned that the revolutionaries intended to kill the sovereigns as they passed, and so he summoned the leaders of the movement and told them that he knew of their plot. "If you carry out your plan," said he to them, "you will get six months in prison. If you do not your friends will accuse you of cowardice and treason." As a way out of the difficulty I propose to lock you up at once until the emperor has gone."

The conspirators accepted the terms offered them and so the emperor was greeted only by cheers, as the revolutionaries, frightened at the arrest of their chief, had not dared to utter a sound.

After the emperor and empress had gone the prefect went in person to release his prisoners, who had had such a pleasant time that they greeted him with cries of "Long live the prefect!" to which M. Janvier de la Monte, who was a man of wit, replied, "My friends, do not overdo it."

Settling a Matrimonial Dispute.

Mme. Sada Yacco, the famous Japanese actress, who had been a friend of the assassinated Prince Ito from her childhood, told the following amusing anecdote:

"In my frequent quarrels with my husband we sometimes asked Prince Ito to judge between us. One day when we had had a more than usually violent dispute at Chigasaki the prince came in unexpectedly, and I asked him to decide the question. But he declined, while proposing the following solution:

"Go down into the garden, both of you, and fight it out like sumo tori (wrestlers). The one that wins will naturally be the one who is in the right."

"No sooner said than done! In a trice Kawai and I were in wrestling trim. By good luck my husband was just recovering from a serious illness, and as he was very weak I soon threw him to the ground. This amused the prince enormously, who, of course, had foreseen the end of the unequal match."

In the wake-up of the list of teachers for the West Glendale school for the coming term, the name of Mrs. Dora Gibson as musical instructor, was omitted by a mistake of the correspondent, which we regret, for it gave a number of people the impression that the worthy lady was not elected. Mrs. Gibson will fill the position the same as last year. She returned from Berkeley on Monday evening after having taken a special course in music, for which she received high honors. She also reports having enjoyed a most delightful vacation, but remarks there is no place like home.

All good, open-hearted people who have more money than is good for their health, couldn't better dispose of some of it than to subscribe just a trifle toward the erection of the new church at the corner of Oak and Pacific streets. It is certainly much needed and the Ladies' Aid and others who are so faithfully working in that direction ought to be helped along in their worthy cause. The church will cost about $2000; $1000 of which has been subscribed up to the present time. The ladies' aid pledged $500 and have already made up over half the amount. Others have subscribed liberally.

J. Fletcher Tatlow's little son Keith, who was brought home a month ago, continues to improve, although very slowly. The little fellow was moved for the first time on Monday evening. It took four persons about an hour to move him from one cot to another, the little fellow suffering intensely. But there is all hope in store for his recovery, as he is now under the care of a most competent specialist, in spinal trouble, where all the trouble is thought to be concentrated. One of the vertebrae is thought to be dislocated, causing a pressure on the sciatic nerve, which causes his limbs to be useless.

"I've been studying pedomancy, Cuthbert," she announced.

"Pedomancy, pet?"

"Divination by the feet," she explained. "Feet that incline to flatness are a sign of meanness, Cuthbert."

Cuthbert looked down at his No. 10 pants and sighed.

"A hurried yet silent walk," she continued. "Is indicative of criminal instincts. Your walk is so hurried, so noiseless, Cuthbert."

"You are speaking of only one of my styles of walking, Ethel," he answered brightly. "I have another. I used this afternoon to walk into a jeweler's shop and buy a $150 engagement ring that I had hoped."

"Oh, Cuthbert!" she cried, and the next minute the pedomancy expert and a splay-footed youth were crowded into one saddlebag chair, and the gas was turned down into a little blue bubble.—San Francisco Chronicle.
